Copy of letter from the Director of Public Instruction dated 17 April 9,
No. 4274.

In view of the fact that the Secretary of State has approved the scheme for the establishment of a Law College in Madras, I have the honor to request that the Government will take into consideration the necessity of providing, as early as possible, a permanent building for the Law College in the immediate vicinity of the new High Court buildings. The building erected should, I consider, provide accommodation for between four and five hundred students reading for the B.L. degree composed of about 300 and of about 150 students reading for ^{the} other tests referred to in the Rules of the College which have been approved by Government.

2. The building to be erected should, I think, contain the following accommodation:

9 Lecture rooms	{ 3 rooms 32 x 48
	{ 3 - do - 24 x 36
	{ 3 - do - 18 x 24
Principal's room	- - 18 x 24
Professors' rooms	- - 18 x 24
Clerks' room	- - 12 x 18
Library	- - 36 x 72
Common room	- - 18 x 24

Considering

Considering that three Professors and 3 assistants at least will be engaged in teaching or tuition and that one or more special Lecturers may be employed, I think that provision should be made for nine class rooms of varying sizes. The provision as regards the other rooms required needs no remark.

The measurements given are of course approximate, but considering the probable size of the classes ranging from 20 or 30 to 100 or 120 at times - and that provision has to be made for examining the students more or less together when more space is required that at ordinary lecture, the specifications noted do not appear to me to be excessive.

3. There are three ways of providing the necessary accommodation.

The first is, by erecting a new building on the esplanade at the corner opposite Popham's Broadway. This seems to me the most appropriate plan. Mr. Lowry's rough estimate for a building with out-houses is Rupees 2,05,700.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE MADRAS GOVERNMENT.

Read the following papers:-

From the Director of Public Instruction, Madras, dated 17th and 25th April 1891, Nos 4274 and 4611, respectively.

Order 20th May 1891 No 592.

The Government is of opinion that it will be advisable to construct an entirely new building for the Law College and for this purpose the most suitable site appears to be the corner site west of the New High Court stables on which a police station ^{now} stands. The construction of the building in this place will render necessary the erection of the proposed Home for soldiers and sailors further to the south than was originally contemplated & the Consulting Architect will therefore be furnished in the Military Department with a plan showing the site at present proposed for the Home and will be directed to report the space required for the construction of the

the new college; upon receipt of this information the Wesleyan Mission will be communicated to with.

2. As regards the size of the building required for the college the Government considers that the provision of nine lecture-rooms made by the Director of Public Instruction is unnecessarily liberal. There will be only six professors and assistant professors including the Principal and it is not likely that they will ever be all at work at once. It is probable therefore that, allowing for increase, seven or eight lecture-rooms, will be found ample.
The common-room for students is too small; it should be at least of the dimensions of the largest lecture-room.

3. The necessary plans and estimates will be called for in the Public Works Department at once.
