In his diary of the 9th September to day, Inspector Norton of Bangalore reports that at 8. p. m. on the 8th a blaze was observed on Telegraph Hill, Bangalore near the Telegraph cable sheds. A Head constable and party went up the Hill at once and found two sheds burnt down and three wires thereby dismembered and plunged into the thicket, with signs of incendiarism about - early next morning, the Head Assistant Magistrate, the Telegraph Master and Inspector Norton went up and examined the spot. They found two sheds burnt down entirely and cables Nos.
4 and 8 and the Public Works Department Telephone wire dismembered. Near each of the other three sheds was found a heap of dismissed workmen, servants or employees of any work middle of all the sheds were found half a bottle of kerosine, some matches and a small pot that had contained tar, also an iron rod curved at one end, such as is commonly used by natives to frighten away snakes from their halls at night. There are not many such rods in Bangalore, so, if the owner belongs to Bangalore, the hunt for him will be circumscribed.
