Sir

I have the honor to report that a most terrific hail storm passed through this station (Belgam in the Parvatipore limits) on the nights of the 15th & 17th Instant not only proving disastrous to Vegetation of all kinds, but causing destruction to tiled roofs. The tiles look as if they were simply beaten down and broken with Cudgels; the walls are so pitted as to show that the hail must have fallen with great force. It is said by reliable persons that the stones were not less in size than medium sized eggs and the roads and streets were covered 2" deep with them. Those in drains took 3 days to dissolve. I think calls for repairing all the tiled roofs of this station will be received from the different departments very soon as in the present state they cannot be watertight.
