Copy of [redacted] fol. Nilgoor
Superi[redacted] of Police; Madura, to the [redacted] ding, Inspn. VI
Circle N[redacted] 26th September 1891.

No 37/1

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter No 319. P. R dated 18th September 1891.

2. I regret to state that up to date no clue has been obtained as to who fired the stable of Mr. Ellis on the night of the 1st August.

3. I have visited the scene of fire, I believe it to be the work of an incendiary.

4. Neither Mr. Ellis nor his servants suspect anyone; there have been some disagreement with a contractor, but I do not think this is alone sufficient ground for suspicion.

5. The crime of incendiarism prev[redacted] Madura District to exc[redacted]nt, the people are of [redacted], a habit, that there [redacted] to be a rick to offici[redacted] copy thatched buildings -

6. When the Railway was under construction in this district, two Assistant Engineers had their thatched bungalows fired - Mr Jarjet the Executive Engineer Rajapet & Mr Ellis had his bungalow burnt on his occasions; only recently the Coach house of the Collector was destroyed by an incendiary, the supposed cause being of the most trivial nature.

7. Engineers being large employers of labour on works, during the construction of which disputes and misunderstandings are unavoidable, special precautions should be taken by them to protect temporarily buildings in which they reside from fire.

8. Both stable and cook room of Mr. Ellis, are two near his thatched bungalow; it was by the merest chance his bungalow was not ignited by the sparks from the stable -

9. The Police will continue to work at this fire case, & shall give orders for the works to be daily visited by the beat Constable and from time to time by the Station Force Officers and Inspector, but I would point out how desirable it is for Officers on works to take precautions against fire conflagration as they are specially liable to which they are specially liable
