9TH APRIL 1892, No. 349, REVENUE.

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

READ—the following extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India, in the Revenue and Agricultural Department (General), dated Calcutta, the 14th March 1892, No. 654-89 :—

Read—

Despatch from Her Majesty's Secretary of State, No. 7, dated 21st January 1892.

Resolution.—In the despatch cited above, Her Majesty's Secretary of State draws attention to the great inconvenience due to the occasional employment in botanic-economic reports published under the authority of Government, of obsolete scientific names of plants, and desires the uniform use in all such official reports in future of the nomenclature established by Sir Joseph Hooker's "Flora of British India" and the official "Dictionary of the Economic Products of India." Considerable inconvenience has also been caused to the Government of India by the use in official reports generally of vernacular and unscientific names in describing or referring to natural and economic products. His Excellency the Governor-General in Council is, therefore, pleased to issue instructions that economic products, whether plants or not, should be described by the scientific name adopted in the official Dictionary, either used alone or written in brackets after any English or vernacular name which may be employed. The nomenclature of economic plants dealt with in the Dictionary of Economic Products is practically based on the "Flora of British India" to which no further reference need be made in such cases. In the case of plants not being economic products, and not therefore included in the Economic Dictionary, the Flora itself should be consulted; but if this work is not available or difficulty is experienced in identification, reference may be made to the Agricultural Department or to the botanical authority of the province.

2. Copies of the Dictionary of the Economic Products of India will shortly be supplied to every district library, and His Excellency in Council hopes that the possession of this work of reference will encourage District Officials and those engaged in the compilation of reports in the employment of correct scientific nomenclature.

Order.—Ordered that a copy of the foregoing resolution be forwarded to all Local Governments and Administrations, and to the officers noted on the margin for information and guidance; also that a copy be forwarded to Home, Military, Public Works, Foreign and Financial Departments for information.
