GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

General.
Establishment.

READ—the following paper:—

Office-note from the Examiner, Public Works Accounts, dated Madras, 19th September 1892, No. 199 A.

To prevent all possibility of misunderstanding on the subject, or a misapplication of the seven accountants in the 8th grade who have been included in the new scale as assistants under training for divisional charges, I think it is desirable that the divisions to which they should be posted should be authoritatively decided by Government.

2. But at the same time I beg that it may be made clear to the department that one object in obtaining sanction of the Government of India to this reserve of men was that they should be available for relief purposes, which form an important part of their training as divisional accountants, and that, therefore, no division has a claim to an assistant accountant as long as his services are temporarily required to take charge of the accounts in another division.

3. To this rule I would make only one exception, viz., in favour of Periyár No. I division; unless all the other six assistants were already in temporary charge of divisional accounts, that is to say, I would not deprive this division of the services of an assistant accountant unless he was the only assistant available for relief purposes.

4. Having thus provided for Periyár No. I division, there remain six men to be posted elsewhere, and, in submitting for approval the offices specified in the margin, I desire to explain that I have been guided in my selection (i) by the heaviness of the account work in each office and (ii) the location of each office as a convenient centre in each circle for the transfer of an assistant to any other office in the circle or out of it if necessary.

5. It will be noticed that I propose to allot one assistant to each circle and to restrict his transfers within that circle as far as possible.

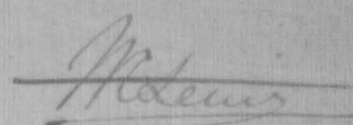

6. There remains one other point in connection with these assistant accountants on which I would ask for orders. It was on my own proposal that in G.O., No. 3196 W., dated 30th November 1891, it was ordered that "the concurrence of the Superintending Engineer should always be obtained to the removal of a divisional accountant," but the reasons given in my office-note, No. 7247 W., dated 23rd November 1891, in favour of such a procedure do not apply in the smallest degree to assistant accountants. These men are really supernumeraries, and executive officers are in no way dependent on them in account matters as they are on divisional accountants, and it would often be a hindrance to work in a division which was left without an accountant owing to sudden illness (as has been the case more than once) if the above formality had to be gone through.

7. I would, therefore, ask that Government may be pleased to leave the transfer of assistant accountants to the Examiner's discretion on the distinct understanding that they are to be moved only for relief purposes and replaced as soon as their services in divisional charges are again available. The Government Order quoted in the preceding paragraph refers only to divisional accountants, and there is no order that would prevent my exercising this discretion at present; but I should prefer an unmistakeable ruling on the point.

OFFICE NOTE No. 199 A

To

W.

To prevent all possibility of misunderstanding on the subject, or a misapplication of the 7 accountants in the 8th. grade who have been included in the new scale as assistants under training for divisional charges, I think it is desirable that the divisions to which they should be posted should be authoritatively decided by Government.

2. But, at the same time, I beg that it may be made clear to the Department that one object in obtaining sanction of the Government of India to this reserve of men, was that they should be available for relief purposes, which form an important part of their training as divisional accountants; and that therefore no Division has a claim to an assistant accountant as long as his services are temporarily required to take charge of the accounts in another Division.

3. To this rule, I would make only one exception, viz in favour of Periyar

No. I Division, unless all the other 6 assistants were already in temporary charge of divisional accounts: that is to say, I would not deprive this Division of the services of an assistant accountant, unless he was the only assistant available for relief purposes.

4. Having thus provided for Periyar No. I Division, there remain 6 men to be posted elsewhere; and in submitting for approval the offices specified in the margin I desire to explain that I have been guided in my selection (i) by the heaviness of the account work in each office, and (ii) the location of each office as a convenient centre in each Circle for the transfer of an assistant to any other office in the Circle, or out of it if necessary.

5. It will be noticed that I propose to allot one assistant to each Circle, and to restrict his transfers within that Circle as far as possible.

6. There remains one other point in connection with these assistant accountants, on which I would ask for Orders. It was on my own proposal that in G.O. No. 3196 W. dated 30th. November 1891 it was ordered that "the concurrence of the Superintending Engineer should always be obtained to the removal of a divisional accountant", but the reasons given in my office note No. 7247 W. dated 23rd. November 1891 in favour of such a procedure, do not apply in the smallest degree to assistant accountants. These men are really supernumeraries, & Executive Officers are in no way dependent on them in account matters, as they are on divisional accountants; and it would often be a hindrance to work in a division which was left without an accountant owing to sudden illness (as has been the case more than once) if the above formality had to be gone through.

7. I would therefore ask that Government may be pleased to leave the transfer of assistant accountants to the Examiner's discretion, on the distinct understanding that they ^{are} ~~were~~ to be moved only for relief purposes, & replaced as soon as their services in divisional charges ^{are} ~~were~~ again available. The G.O. quoted in the preceding para refers only to divisional accountants, and there is no order that would prevent my exercising this discretion at present; but I should prefer an unmistakeable ruling on the point.
