Mrs. Levete Yeats D.P.W. has been under my observation and treatment for the last 3 months for a low form of fever and lately for obstinate insomnia. My attention was called to him a few days ago, when without apparent cause he fell into a faint.

He tells me that he often feels on the point of fainting but that he had never before completely lost consciousness.

I consider that he has been overworking himself lately, and that a rest of 2 or 3 months is necessary.
