2. His explanation for the accounts of the Bridge having become "entangled" is that the coolies employed on one work were charged to another. This is not satisfactory.

The disentangling which it appears he was unable to effect until March's accounts were submitted must have been a process of guess work, if as appears separate muster rolls were not maintained. As there was an Overseer specially employed on the Kullar works, there ought to have been no difficulty in keeping separate muster rolls as besides a clerk he had also a special gumasta for the purpose.

Sir,

I have the honor to submit with reference to para 2 of G.O. No. 195W of 15th August 1894 Mr. Lewis' explanation for the non-submission of Progress Reports for the Kullar Bridge. It can scarcely be called an explanation as it simply points out that I was not quite correct in stating that no progress reports were sent up to end of last official year. This is so, I find. The report for August 1893 was received in Colonel Smart's time and the report for September was received by me on 24th November. With the exception of these two reports no report was rethe Kullar; the same coolies were employed on these different works as emergencies arose. Until I sent a special clerk out from my office in March, the various items were not properly distinguished till the March accounts.

2. A reminder was received from your office in February 1894 and was replied to in this office No. 947 of 14th March 1894.

Sir,

With reference to G.O. No 1905 W

point out that it is not quite correct to say that no progress report for the Kullar Bridge works was submitted till the end of the Official year. The report for September and October was submitted the latter initialled by you on 24 November 1893; Owing to the fact that there were 3 different works going on at the same spot, viz: Temporary suspension bridge
