No 288h of 6 Feb. 1895.

Read the following:—

From the Consulting Architect to Govt.
No 3146 dated 28th January 1895.

FOR ORDERS.

There is no provision in the rules for a case of this kind, which seems to be the first that has arisen. On the other hand there seems nothing in the rules to bar the application which seems in itself unobjectionable. The Consulting Architect may possibly devote a portion of his official time to the instruction of his artied pupil, and this pupil though not a Government servant will have access to Govt. records and works, but these grounds do not appear sufficient to justify the refusal of the application.

It should perhaps be a condition that the "articles" must be so drawn as not to bind the Govt. in any way, and it will probably be advisable that with this view they should be examined by the Govt. Solicitor. Subject to this condition I would recommend that the permission asked for be granted.
