I see no objection to the preparation of may be accorded to prepare the site. But I don't see why the necessary detailed plan of Mangalore titles need be incurred & Estimate for Mangalore hills for such a building - In fact they are not as conveniently as ordinary flat & roofed Verandahs for the titles. When money will be raising ones at the cost of S. S. V. Guinea available to carry about Rs 4500 for the Judge deput another question.

are made up of Coconut leaves and require renewal every year, and being inflammable are a source of danger to the building. It is therefore proposed to substitute Mangalore tile roofed verandahs for the existing ones at a cost of about Rs. 4,100. I therefore request that sanction may be accorded to prepare the necessary detailed plan and estimate for the work proposed—

Note for the Honourable
Mr Bliss, C.D.E.

How. Member's note
dated 17. November 1896.

But ^{can} a Mangalore tiled roof be provided at the rate given if there is a ceiling under? If not, they are too but some might almost as well dispense with the Verandahs.

BS
26/11/96

The Mangalore tiled roof will be cheaper than flat and pan tiled
roof.

The Mangalore tiles with sleepers is estimated at Rs 23 per square and the flat and pan tiled roof with sleepers at Rs 20 per square.

The saving will be effected in the rafters.
The Mangalore tiled
roof will only require about half the quantity of rafters to carry it than the flat and pan tiled roof would require.
A saving of Rs 10 per square on this account is estimated.

Note for the Honourable M^r. Bliss, C.S.E.

A Mangalore tiled roof with a plank ceiling under it cannot be provided for the rate given.

If a teak ceiling of $\frac{1}{2}$ " boards be provided the cost will be increased by Rs 20 per square making a total rate of Rs 43 per square.

It is not usual to put a plank ceiling to verandah roofs.

Should say that a verandah of Mangalore tiles without ceiling would be very hot, & personally I should far prefer one of the ordinary flat & painted. However, I do not insist on my view

With reference to the note, please say whether a mangrove tiled veranda would be more expensive than a flat & pan tiled one for the building in question.

A mangrove tiled roof
will be less expensive.
The rate at Tanjong for flat & pan tiles per square is Rs 20, against Rs 23 for mangrove tiles but a saving 50% will be effected in roof timber than means a ^{net} saving of at least Rs 10 per sq.

The rate given does not provide for ceiling as it is not usual to ceil mangalms tiled verandahs.

If teak ceiling of $\frac{1}{2}$ " board be provided, the extra cost will be Rs 20 per square, making mangalms tiled roof Rs 10 dearer than flat & pan tiles per square.

The Hon. Member may be informed that it is not ^{conducted} necessary to put a plank ceiling to the verandah roof. The verandah can be useful in keeping out the glare during the ~~hot~~ hottest part of the day.
