No. 2426 C.

The undersigned has the honour to state that he is unable to approve the estimate of Rs. 1,400 for constructing a ryots' shed and providing furniture, &c., to the Head Assistant Collector's office at Ramnad, in the absence of explanation as to why the standard design circulated with G.O., No. 1409 W., dated 28th May 1889, has not been observed, and of information regarding the nature of surface and subsoils.

2. It is not clear whether the vakils' tables and seats should be considered as fixtures : if so, they are admissible under Public Works Code, Volume I, Chapter X, paragraph 2. But if they are not fixtures, the sanction of Government will be necessary under paragraph 4. This point requires elucidation.

12th May 1897.

From Lieutenant-Colonel O. V. BODDY, R.E., Superintending Engineer, VI Circle, to the Chief Engineer, Public Works Department, dated Trichinopoly, 9th August 1897, No. 1136 M.D.

I am, however, of opinion that table and seats for vakils cannot be regarded as fixtures, and I request that the sanction of Government may be obtained for the purchase of them, as they are necessary.

2. The nature of surface soil is sand to a depth of 6 inches. Soil below is sand mixed with clay to a depth of 1½ feet; below this, red clay to a depth of 3 feet; still below, soil is lime kunker mixed with red clay, which extends to about 9 feet.

3. Vakils' table and seats are indispensable appendages of a court-room, and hence should be considered as fixtures.

Sir/

I regret of having quoted the wrong G.O. in my note dated 29th April 1897.

The original G.O. circulating the design for out buildings to Taluq offices is 1014 dated 20th April 1874. This design was since revised, by omitting the ryots shed & public latrine, in G.O. No. 1409 W dated 28th May 1889.

The nature of the surface soil is now reported to be sand to a depth of 6 inches and the sub soil ~~sand~~ mixed with clay to a depth of 1.6" & below this red clay to a depth of 3 feet. The foundations ~~are~~ proposed for the ryots shed, viz 3½ feet in depth, made up of 1½ ft. concrete & 2 feet of brick masonry appears to be sufficient
