In G.O. No 2661W
dated 18.9.96 it was ruled that as little stock as possible should be kept up in distant
depôts & that whatever stock is necessary beyond immediate requirements should be stored in the central depôt at Madras, where better arrangements can be made not only for
looking after the stores, but for their judicious & economical distribution to divisions.

The General Super
P. W. Stone at London appears to have read
this order as referring only to fresh stock coming out to from England, and

H.E. 24.9.97 R 30.9.97

declined to receive surplus stores from the Bezwada workshops -

The Supt. Circle II
Circle reports that there is no market for surplus stores at Bezwada, where they could be sold only at a ruinous loss, and no room to store them - He suggests that they should be sent to the Madras Stores, to which they can be forwarded without much expense
by boat.

The Genl Supt.
at Madras is now
willing to receive these surplus stores, and it is proposed therefore to sanction the transfer.

The Chief Engineer,

SIR,

In reference to G.O. no 2661 W & 10th Sep: '96. I have the honour to inform you that in August last I sent a list of stores, surplus in this Circle, to the General Supt.
P. W. Stores, Madras, but that Officer informs me in his no 788 of 27th March 1897 that he does not require any of those stores.

2. It appears to me that the intention of the G. O. quoted above is to constitute the P. W. Stores Madras, a central depot for all surplus stores, and if I am correct I beg that the necessary orders

orders may be issued.

3. As alternatives to sending the surplus stores to Madras, there are I fear but two, one is to leave the articles where they are and the other is to sell them here at a ruinous loss. There is absolutely no market for ^{the} sale of surplus stores in Bezwada, and in the central store at Madras better arrangements can be made for looking after the articles and distributing them when required to other Ds.

We are very much cramped for room in the Bezwada work shops, and have no store room worthy of the name. I may also add that the machinery included in the list can be sent to Madras by boat without incurring much expense.

I am the honorable,
Sir
