2. In answer to the questions put by Govt. the Collector reports that the site on the parade ground recommended by him is not usually liable to inundation. It appears only to have been submerged on two occasions, once for about a day in 1882 and again in 1895, when there were extraordinary floods in the Tammileru. The Collector states that on these occasions access to the site was only impeded for a few hours, and that even this trifling amount of inconvenience is not likely to be experienced in future, because the Railway authorities and the Public Works Dept. have done much to improve the means of discharging the Tammileru when in flood. It appears further that a site on slightly higher ground is available in the same locality close to the P. W. sub-divisional office.
