Order—Mis. No. 6436, Revenue, dated 15th December 1897.

Retransferred to the Public Works Department with the following remarks :—

The case of men whose pay is charged to the works and who do not form part of any regularly-organized establishment, is analogous to that of punkah-pullers dealt with in paragraph 3 of the Accountant-General's letter in G.O., No. 781, Revenue, dated 13th September 1897, and such men are not entitled to the compensation payable under article 72 of the Civil Account Code. It may, however, be considered hard on these men to give retrospective effect to this ruling and to recover the extra payments already made from them. But in any case these payments are not debitable as "famine batta" and must be taken as a regular "works" charge.

I have the honour to inform you that the Examine P.W. Accounts in her Disallowance List on the Ordinary Salary bill of the Division for August 1897, has disallow famine batta to acting and temporary men, to the former under Government of India P.W.D. No 1098 G dated 28 April 1897, and to the latter on the ground that there is no ru under which compensation for dearness of provisions can be granted to men on the temporary establishment. On a reference made by this Office you instructed me to pass the allowance to temporary men, vide your No 3635 dated 17th September 1897 and the batta has already been paid. Ha I waited for audit the object of the allowance would hav been lost, as the famine would have been pretty well over and the men would not have received the relief when they needed it most and distress was at its highest. I would also point out that the famine establishment is almost entirely composed of temporary men and that the allowance is passed in the Civil Department to temporary men. The allowance has also been paid to the work establishment employed in this Division, as per orders contained in your

No.

No. 3635 dated 17th September 1897. I beg to request therefore that the question as to the admissibility of the allowance to these two classes of establishment may if necessary, be referred to Government for orders at your earliest convenience as the famine works are being rapidly closed and most of men whose services are being dispensed with are in the temporary establishment that claims cannot be finally settled.
