97. The Consulting Engineer drew attention to the expense incurred in constructing buildings, similar to the plan submitted for sanction for Assistant Station Master's dwellings at Tungabhadra, Yerraguntla and Kuppam, and requested that, as an experimental measure, these houses might be built in mud instead of chunam, and with erool instead of teak timber.

The effect of this change would be to reduce the cost in each case about one-third from the original estimate. The estimates were accordingly reduced and the figures entered in the schedule (Minute No. 96) for this class of work agreed to as above.
