idea when station house officers and constables were both together in station. On the following morning the village magistrate despatched complainant in a palanquin to the station. Constable No 358 met the complainant on the road and took him back to his village. Constable here promised to enquire all the parties. After doing so he said he would send the complainant to Ayole Hospital. This he never did and complainant finding after the lapse of some days that nothing had been done, went of his own accord to the Ayole Hospital for treatment. The blood stained clothes were last seen by Doddanuram Village Magistrate in the custody of Constable No 358 on the 2nd May last. Station House Officer No 64 neither registered the case at once nor did he proceed for enquiry at all though he admits that the crime was reported to him by 358 on the 3rd May. Head Constable states in defence that on receiving

Constable

Constable No 358's verbal report of the case on the 3rd May he came to the conclusion that the case fell under section 323 I.P.C. and that it was therefore non-cognizable. He therefore merely registered the case on that date and referred Compt for redress to the Magistrate. Here Head Constable displays lamentable ignorance. The blows which were no doubt severe, were inflicted on Head Constable well known by all eyes. This should have shown the Station House Officer that the case fell under section 324 I.P.C., at least, at all events he should have despatched the Complainant to Hospital, got him treated and awaited the Medical Officer's opinion in the case. This he did not do by his own admission. He further states in his defence that the village Magistrate might have made up this story to evade the blame that would be imputed to him for not sending a report to the Station. This is sheer nonsense. It is clear that the village Magistrate in no way attempted to suppress the case and having promptly reported to the Sub-Magistrate there was no possible reason for him to abstain from reporting to the Station. The conduct of 358 in taking Complainant back to his village and then staying proceedings is very suspicious. In all probability he squared the charge against the accused with them and having returned to the Station gave the Station House Officer a portion of his ill-gotten gain. Constable 358 states in defence that the Doddanuram Village Magistrate is on bad terms with him because he (Const.) once reported to the Sub-Magistrate through an occurrence report that the village Magistrate had given the wrong age of a girl, his relation in an inquest report and that in consequence the village Magistrate was summoned & inquired by the Sub-Magistrate in giving false evidence at at least against the Station House Officer. Inspector Mr Inoue was in charge of M.D. as well as his own at the time and it was only after Complainant personally represented matters to the Inspector that the accused were charged. Considerable delay took place between the occurrence of crime and the date of trial which took place in Nellore owing to the absence of the joint Magistrate on other duty. In the meanwhile Complainant recovered his health and the case was compromised. Had Station House Officer taken immediate steps this mis-carriage of justice would not have followed. I reduce both these Police Officers one step in rank for hushing up a case reported to their station under section 326 I.P.C. either owing to gross apathy or corrupt motives.
