Phthisis Pulmonalis

This man was admitted into hospital on the 30th of August 1871 suffering from cough and general debility. Patient states that in February last he first began to suffer from cough, night sweat, loss of appetite - since that time he cough has been getting gradually very threatening night and great weakness steadily increases. At present patient is extremely emaciated, scarcely, countenance and great weakness with bucco-pharyngeal expectoration. Appetite fair, but dissipated. Regular, on examining the chest, there is great flattening in both infraclavicular regions, percussion gives slight dulness over both apices, and on auscultation small "crepitation" is well marked. Secretions also can be heard over the left apex. Pulse 100, weak but intermittent. Struck sound normal. Think there is no probability that this man will be fit for further service. Name entered on General Service and put the result of his own opinion = = done.
