The entries relating to his service in the Salt Department prior to his transfer to the

Madras Taluk are not verified (as in records now preserved, which show right on the face) and exactly as solemnly attested by him before the 2nd Class Magistrate of Raminad. It will be seen moreover that they do not correspond to the entries in his Service Register which accompanies, and which was prepared in the Peracolum Taluk, where he was last employed. The different periods of service as stated therein being found partly unreliable - entered as they were as represented by the Applicant uncorroborated by records or other evidence - The existing records (most of the records having been destroyed) simply show that the Applicant was employed in the Salt Department and was transferred thence to Madras. It is impossible therefore to fix dates as to when for a certainty, how long the Applicant was in service prior to his transfer to Madras. Having to obtain this information affidavits were taken from him and two of his contemporary employees translations of which are forwarded herewith. Even these do not agree, and the Applicant's own statement as will be observed, materially contradicts his former statement on which his Service Register was prepared. I recommend therefore that a gratuity be granted to him in recognition of so much of his service as has been verified, viz 21 years 9 months and 19 days. This is no doubt a hard case, as there is evidence that the man was employed in the Salt Department but there is no means of ascertaining how long he was so employed, especially as the statement of the Applicant is unsupported by his contemporary employees.

The register of Applications duly signed by the Collector in the first page is here with returned. The service book of the applicant drawn on the printed form and signed by the Collector and others at the places pointed out is also sent herewith.

On the retirement of the applicant, the Tahsildar of the Talook in which he was last employed was in communication with the officers in which he previously held appointments, regarding his period of service therein and submitted the application for grant of pension together with their replies. The imperfect information afforded by the Tahsildar, necessitated references to various officers regarding his remote periods of service. Replies were submitted after consulting the mass of records in the offices which were still found defective. Further references were directed to be made to the old records which was accordingly done and affidavits taken from some of the contemporaneous employers and the applicant himself. The circumstances detailed above account for the delay in submitting the application.
