From, The Accountant General, Madras
To, The Collector of Malabar.

Vide your letter n^o 190 A dated 31st January 1878.

The undersigned has the honor to state that in the event of your Anjur Sirastadan retiring from service at once he will be entitled to a pension equal to half his average pay for five years preceding the date of retirement, reckoning his service from June 1850, provided that such service was continuous.

2. Regarding his service as Inspector, Elementary Vernacular Schools for slaves, it is doubtful whether the appointment was permanent or temporary; that point will be reported upon and left for the decision of Government on the retirement of the Sirastadan. The exclusion or inclusion of that period of service however, will not, it appears from the service list, affect the amount of pension admissible.

Collector and Magistrate's Office. Sir, I have known for years, a clever, fair, and capable young man. It is worthy of remark that at a time when peculiar bigotry was manifested throughout the district when the slaves were emancipated and the Government established schools to raise the social condition and intelligence of this neglected and despised race this young man showed independence of mind and undertook the trustorship of Chermur Schools, travelled assiduously about to the different stations giving satisfaction to the officers in charge and Mr. Conolly. He is well spoken of among his fellow servants in public employment and bears a fair character with his fellow countrymen. I have tried his powers—he reads quickly, and with ease to himself and intelligibly to the hearer. His orders are fairly drawn—his nervousness he will overcome. On the whole I have no hesitation in confirming the temporary arrangement of the Head Assistant who has left the matter in my hands. (Signed) W. Robinson Ag.
