Memorandum showing the supposed cause of the present high price of Rice in the Market.

By enquiry we learn that there must be at the present time upwards of 1500 Garses of Rice (exclusive of Katchay and Veragoo and other Grains consumed by the people) in store in the Grain Merchants Godowns of this place. —
 1 Garce = 400 Measles
 1 Attamal = 8 Measles
 1 Garce = 3200 Measles
 About 20 days supply.

From One Vessel 10,000 Bags of Grain, Rice, and Paddy have recently been landed and on board another there are 8,000 Bags for delivery at this Port, but that two Native Vessels are now loading with Rice for Colombo.

During the last month upwards of 30,000 Bags of Paddy and 10,000 of Rice have been brought to Madras from Northern Ports by Ships, independent of that brought by the Native Craft.

The supply brought in from the Country daily by Cart to the several Bazaars, is about 120 Cents load. Each load being about 60 Bags or 360 Measles.

The Report of Imports show that a large supply of Grain has reached this Port since the last harvest from Bengal and the Northern Ports, but that the usual supply from our Southern Ports has not been sent here, because the scarcity of that article of Food in Ceylon, has induced the Grain Merchants of our Southern Districts to export large quantities to Colombo, where they obtain a ready sale and high price.

One Vessel has recently been freighted by a merchant of this place for the express purpose of bringing Rice into this Market from the Northern Ports before the Monsoon sets in, and it is hoped that the present high price may induce others to follow this example. —

As the prices at which rice sells in England, afford no encouragement for the exportation of Rice to the European Markets, it is thought that a large quantity of the produce of the harvest of the present season in Arracan and Siam, must be sent into the Indian Market for sale.

It seems therefore that the present high price of rice must be attributed to unusual circumstances to the reported failure of the Monsoon rain in the Mydore and Cochin Districts to the expected demand for supply from the Coast which such a failure would occasion, and to the exportation of rice to Ceylon.

Yours very truly

My dear Douglass

Dear Sir

Your paper on the of Rice with a copy of my own which you make whatever you like of.

I have this moment seen that your estimate of the supply now in need of Rice is about the same it is rather low but is stated that the use of rice is increased.

From the information which we have been able to obtain we estimate that the stock of rice now in the hands of the Gov. (Canton of Haden) amounts to over 100,000 bushels. The City of Canton under the Gov. has bought an addition of 100,000 bags to the stock, and the following vessels are now loading with rice for the same destination

General Hancock

Arab Maid

and a French Mail. Another vessel is under charter to proceed to the above

Port for Rice for Haden

During the last month upwards of 250,000 bags ofaddy + 160,000 of Rice have been imported into Haden from the Northern Ports, by American Registered Vessels exclusive of that brought by British Vessels.

The high price of Rice ruling in England has attracted to the Port of that Island large supplies from our Southern Districts whilst the Custom House returns show a large export into Madras from the Northern Port & Calcutta of which a large portion has been on Govt account

The ~~market~~ price of Rice in the European Markets is exceedingly depressed being considerably lower than its relation value in India, looking to the enormous stocks in the Port of Great Britain, it seems certain that a market will be sought in India for the bulk of the present season's ~~harvest~~ crop ~~which~~ the high rates prevailing cannot fail to attract large supplies from the American & French

Early in the year some considerable shipments of the grain were made from the Northern Port to the European Markets & there have been large draws on the Residency stores to supply the deficiency in Mysore & the Ceded Districts caused by a failure of the periodical rains, on the whole however we think there are grounds for, considering that the ^{rate} ~~price~~ of the piece has seen its highest & that the course of prices has rather an downward tendency.
