My dear Sir

I do not see that Mr. Collett need be sent to inquiry. The statement of the subject of inquiry, there appeared to be a blunder, and no doubt other officers of that post, who could represent all that occurred before being in position.

This statement on any matter that may arise during the inquiry could be obtained by sending any questions to him briefly to your sitting party.

I do not see the collector's name in the list of witnesses, but he will, I think, be required by the Court, and should be warned to prevent delay.

Yours faithfully
H. W. Mitchell
