Proceedings of the Madras Government, Public Department, 8th September 1866.

No. 50. Read the following letter from the Magistrate of Nellore, to the Acting Chief Secretary to Government, Fort Saint George; dated Nellore, 13th June 1866, No. 24.

I have the honor to submit the Memorandum of proposed expenditure and Notification called for in the Proceedings of Government of the 9th May last, Public Department.

2. Under the head of "General Conservancy" expensive duties are imposed on the Municipal Commissioners; and as these duties are apparently obligatory, it is difficult to draw up details of expenditure in a satisfactory manner. The general Conservancy goes far to swallow up all raised for the purposes specified in Section 25 of the Act, and leave nothing for sweeping and keeping the streets clean, or for the repair of roads on which, nevertheless, it is necessary to place tolls, and prisoners can no longer be employed save as paid labour.

3. In case I should be mistaken in my construction of the Act, I beg briefly to refer to the duties I consider obligatory, and the expenditure set forth in detail in the Memorandum.

4. The first of these duties is, the removal of night soil, dung, and other filth, (Section 81). From the wording of Section 87, the Commissioners have a latitude allowed them as to time; but Section 88 limiting this latitude, as regards the occupier of a house to twenty-four hours, the same limit must be affixed to the discretion allowed to the Commissioners; and thus the Commissioners are apparently obliged to have every privy and cess-pool cleaned through the whole town once every day.

5. If there were a stop after the "twenty-four hours" in Section 88, and the Section had run "more than twenty-four hours, or otherwise than in some proper receptacle, &c.," the requisite arrangements could have been made more cheaply.

6. But, assuming that all night soil must be moved in the twenty-four hours, and taking into consideration the extent of ground covered by Nellore and its suburbs (more than three miles,) then the proposed Commissioners, with whom I have consulted, are of opinion that 40 carts at least must be used, and the annual charge under this head is given at 10,000 Rupees.

7. A large portion of Nellore is occupied by an agricultural class who keep dung heaps in their back-yards, and move the manure to their fields when convenient. The Act changes this system; and, pending the requisite arrangements, should the Commissioners have to move the dung, as well as the night soil, the 40 carts will be insufficient; and, on the other hand, I doubt whether many of the people could find the requisite labour.

8. Perhaps in this respect the Government would not wish the Act strictly enforced, though the terms are positive, that "the Municipal Commissioners shall provide all cattle, carts, &c., required for the removal of night soil, dung, &c."

9. Another point on which I feel doubtful whether the Act is to be enforced, and to which I will now refer, though not bearing on expenditure, is where dung has been dried for firing. The wording of Section 88 has, apparently, distinct reference to this practice, when it talks of dung upon roofs, &c.; but such enforcement of the Act would be an interference with native customs that I do not think necessary so far as health is concerned; and, perhaps, I am giving the Act a construction that was not intended, in which case I beg I may be set right.

10. The removal of night soil once in the twenty-four hours, involving an annual outlay of 10,000 Rupees, the second heavy item of expenditure, is providing and maintaining in good order the requisite number of common privies and urinals. These privies and urinals must be in pairs for the sexes. Here, again, the straggling nature of the town increases the expenditure. We could not do with less than 12 pairs, and the requisite establishments would cost Rupees 3000 per annum.

11. For clearing the privies and cess-pools in the town, and providing the requisite establishments for the common privies, the annual cost would be Rupees 13,000; but it is not usual for cess-pools to be cleaned once in every twenty-four hours; and should I have given to Section 88 a meaning it does not bear, then the amount required under the first head of expenditure would be considerably reduced, and the money set free could be devoted to the repair of our roads and streets. For the main street alone the estimate is Rupees 4200.

Memorandum specifying in detail the expenditure which it is proposed to incur in the Town of Nellore in the current year for Conservancy, and for the Office, and Office Establishment of the Commissioners, as well as the sources from which this expenditure can best be met.

II. ANNUAL RECEIPTS.

1. Rate on Houses, Buildings, and Lands at 7½ per cent.

This source is estimated to realize, in round numbers, Rupees 5000, which would be on an average of four to each house with a population of 20,000, and vary from 4 Annas to 2 Rupees a head on the rate-payers. But the amount to be realized is, however, under-estimated in all probability, and as estimated the details are annexed.

2. Tax on Arts, Trades, and Professions.

In the following details this source of income is estimated at Rupees 7000, and would average on the whole Rupees four a head. But it is proposed to exempt from taxation Artizans and others, the annual rental of whose shop, place of business, or house, renders such a course advisable. It is not seemly to tax those who have not clothes, let alone a roof to cover them; and thus limited, this tax may be estimated to yield Rupees 6000.

This tax may be estimated to yield Rs. 6,884 per annum.

which is a sum, I think, in excess of what is likely to be realized, but likely to be balanced by an excess in the first item.

Proceedings of the Madras Government, Public Department,
8th September 1866.

4. Taxes on Carriages, Horses, and other Animals.

This would yield Rupees 2746, according to the accompanying estimate; but arrangements might probably be made by residents that would considerably modify the expected receipts, and it would not be safe to expect more than Rupees 2000.

3. And taking the carts of the Town at 200, and the Registration fees at Rupee 1, the following is an abstract of the expected receipts, to which is added a round sum that may be expected for penalties, as well as for licenses under Section 133 :—

	RS.
1. Rate on Houses, &c.....	5,000
2. Tax on Arts, Trades, &c.....	6,000

6. Penalties and licenses.....	600

At present, it would not be safe to calculate on much being made by the sale of manure. It has not, therefore, been included as a source of income; though, doubtless, conservancy will in time be to a great extent self-supporting.

4. As regards the mode of taxation most suitable to the town, the proposed Commissioners are of opinion that the 1st, 3rd, 4th, and 5th terms of taxation are preferable to the 2nd, which it is nevertheless necessary to have recourse to, even should it be possible to save on the 1st item of expenditure; for the streets of the town and the roads within the limits will require a heavy outlay at first, and means must further be provided for paying the interest on such money as it may be found necessary to raise for works of a permanent nature.

5. At present it is proposed to erect temporary enclosures for the common privies. When the most convenient sites have been ascertained, permanent buildings will have to be put at the cost the Executive Engineer estimates for 50 people of Rupees 1400. Carts for the night soil, it is similarly estimated, will cost Rupees 150 each. Forty carts, costing Rupees 6000, would be plant that could scarce be bought with propriety out of the annual receipts. Carts for cleaning the streets, and other work, such as dust boxes (Section 84), the naming and numbering of streets, (Sections 128 and 129,) and the collection of information as to lands and houses, &c., liable to the tax, for which 1000 Rupees have been allowed, might also be considered works rather of a permanent nature than justly chargeable to the first year of the introduction of the tax. And to this the Commissioners would probably wish to add the cost of building a suitable office instead of renting a house as at present proposed; for all which purposes, money will have to be raised in due course with the sanction of Government, and, if possible, provision made in the present estimate for paying the interest thereon.

Proceedings of the Madras Government, Public Department,
8th September 1866.

6. For Commissioners more Hindoos not Brahmins have been named, in accordance to the orders noted in the column of remarks; and the name of Malavi Fassihudin has been removed at his own request on account of old age.

7. The Superintendent of Police has been consulted as to boundaries, and the changes made, as to the limits within which the Police have hitherto worked, are merely what is necessary to give a marked line for the imposition of the rate.

No. 51. ORDER THEREON, 8th September 1866, No. 911.

In this letter the Magistrate of Nellore submits his proposals for introducing "The Towns' Improvement Act, 1865," into the Town of Nellore.

2. The annual expenditure is estimated at Rupees 24,325, including the Police charge as shown in the margin.

	RS.
Conservancy.....	16,200
Establishment.....	3,360
Police.....	4,765
	24,325

3. The charge for Conservancy is very high, owing in a great measure to the straggling character of the Town.

4. With reference to the Magistrate's remarks on the construction to be placed on Sections 81, 87 and 88 of the Act, the Government observe that the operations of the Municipal Commissioners must of necessity be gradual. All the literal requirements of the Act cannot at once be carried out. Section 87 evidently has reference only to the proviso contained in Section 82, while the penalty prescribed in Section 88 could not justly be enforced, unless the occupier of the house kept the night soil for more than 24 hours, notwithstanding that carts were provided by the Municipal Commissioners. He could, however, be punished for not keeping it "in some proper receptacle" without limit of time, and this is enough for sanitary purposes. It is desirable that all offensive substances should be removed at least once in 24 hours, and eventually the Commissioners will no doubt be able to compass this; but at first this can only be done in the more crowded and accessible parts of the town.

5. The practice referred to in paragraph 7 should be gradually repressed, where considered and professionally declared injurious to the health of the neighbourhood.

6. The practice referred to in paragraph 9, not being prejudicial to health, need not be interfered with.

7. The Act will be brought into operation for the half-year commencing 1st November next and ending 30th April 1867 and, for this period, the Government consider that the Conservancy expenditure may properly be limited to Rupees 6000, and the charge for establishment to Rupees 1250 including office rent.

8. The total charges would thus be Rupees 9632, of which Government would contribute Rupees 2408, leaving Rupees 7224 to be raised by local taxation.

9. The Magistrate proposes to have recourse to all the taxes authorized by the Act, and expects to realize altogether Rupees 20,000, for the whole year.

10. The expenditure having been reduced as above stated, it will be for the Commissioners to consider whether the whole of the proposed sum should be raised this year, the surplus being applied under Section 29. The Government would especially inculcate economy in buildings, until other more pressing wants are provided for. The construction of such expensive "necessaries" as seem to be contemplated, and of an office, is scarcely requisite at present.

Proceedings of the Madras Government, Public Department, 8th September 1866.

11. With the modifications above noted, the Governor in Council approves of the arrangements proposed by the Magistrate, and directs the issue of the following Notification.

NOTIFICATION.

Sir

I have the honor to submit the memorandum of proposed expenditures and receipts called for in the Proceedings of Government of the 9th May last Public Department.

Under the head of General Concurrence expensive duties are imposed on the Municipal Commissioners. And as these duties are apparently obligatory, it is difficult to draw up details of expenditure in a satisfactory manner. The General Concurrence goes far to swallow up all raised for the purposes specified in Section 35 of the Act & leaves nothing for sweeping & keeping the streets clean, or for the repair of roads on which nevertheless it is necessary to place tolls and prisoners can as being the improved same as parcel C above.

In case a should be mistaken in his construction of the Act, I beg leave to refer to the duties I considered obligatory, & the expenditure & efforts in detail & in the home randoms.

4. The first of these duties is the removal of night soil during and after fairs (Section 81).
From the wording of Section 81 of the Sanitary Act
I am a latitude allowed them as to time. But Section 80 limiting this latitude as regards the occupier of a house to twenty-four hours, the Sanitary Committee must be referred to the discretion of a Council to the Commissioners. And thus the Commissioners are apparently obliged to have every privy and cesspool cleaned through the whole year in every day.

If there were a stop after the twenty-four hours in Section 80 & the Sanitary Act have more than twenty-four hours or otherwise than

than in some proper receipt & the requisite arrangements could have been made more cheaply.

6. But assuming that all night soil must be moved in the 24 hours & taking into consideration the extent of ground covered by Ballone and its suburbs (more than 3 miles) then the proposed Commissioners with whom I have consulted are of opinion that 40 carts at least must be used, & the annual charge under this head is given at £10,000 per year.

7. A large portion of Ballone is occupied by an agricultural class who keep dung heaps in their back yards, & move the manure to their fields when convenient. The Act changes this system. And, pending the requisite arrangements, should the Commissioners have to move the dung as well as the night soil, the 40 carts will be insufficient. And on the other hand I doubt whether many of the people could send the requisite labour.

8. Perhaps in this respect the government would not wish to let strict enforcement change the laws are practices that the Municipal Commissioners call for more will call for more required for the removal of night soil during time.

9. Another point on which I feel doubtful whether the act is to be enforced & to which I will now refer things not requiring an expenditure is where dung has been dried for firing. The wording of section 88 has apparently distinct reference to this practice when it talks of dung upon roofs &c. But such enforcement of the act would be an interference with native customs that I do not think necessary so far as health is concerned. And perhaps I am giving the act a construction that was not intended; in which case I beg it may be set right.

10. The removal of night soil at night twenty four hours involving an annual outlay of 10,000 Rs. the second head of expenditure is providing and maintaining in good order the requisite number of common privies and urinals. These privies and urinals must be in pairs for the sexes. Here again the straggling nature of the town increases the expenditure. We could not do with less than 12 pairs, and the requisite establishments would cost Rs 2,000 per annum.

11. For clearing the privies and cesspools in the town and providing the requisite establishments for the common privies, the annual cost would be Rs 13,000. But it is not usual for cesspools to be cleaned once in every 24 hours. And should I have given to section 88, as meaning it does not bear, then the amount required under the first head of expenditure would be considerably reduced, and the money set free could be devoted to the repair of our roads & streets.
