Proceedings of the Madras Government, Public Department, 19th March 1869.

No. 162. Read the following letter from C. G. WALKER, Esq., Madras Civil Service, to the Chief Secretary to Government, Fort Saint George; dated Madras, 4th March 1869.

I have the honor to lay the following statement before Government for their consideration.

2. In the Gazette of India of February 20th appeared (page 666) a correspondence resulting in rulings—

1st.—That one year, passed by a Covenanted Civilian on sick leave, should count, as of old, as residence and service as far as it relates to his reckoning of furlough at his credit.

2nd.—That the crediting of furlough should be by the proportion of one year in four, the correspondence indicating as example, three months to be credited as due for each year of residence and service.

3. This in a measure touches me. I arrived in the country October 25th, 1860, and up to March 20th, 1869, the date from which I have obtained furlough on medical certificate, I can count eight years, four months, and twenty-six days' service. But I was absent on sick leave from April 15th, 1866, to November 28th, 1867, or one year, seven months, and thirteen days; hence I have actual residence and service of six years, nine months, and thirteen days; or, (as under the first ruling above quoted, I can count for service one year of my absence,) a virtual residence and service of seven years, nine months, and thirteen days. Under the second ruling, seven years' residence gives me twenty-one months, or one year and nine months' leave as accruing, of which I have expended one year, seven months, and thirteen days, leaving one month and seventeen days to my credit. If the proportion is to be carried throughout, I can add also one-fourth of nine months and thirteen days, or two months and ten days, making in all three months and twenty-seven days. In either case I have some leave at my credit, and during it, under Rule VIII. (b) I am entitled to half-pay in place of subsistence allowance.

4. I have the honor to ask early consideration of the point, with a view to my approaching departure.

5. In the event of the Government accepting my view of the case, I shall retain a lien upon my late appointment until the end of the leave at my credit, and Mr. Lilly's appointment to the permanent post will have to be suspended until the same time.

6. But this will further affect my present allowances. I am now drawing subsistence allowance only, in accordance with the second and third sentences of Rule XI.; but if I am considered to have furlough at my credit, and therefore to be entitled to half-pay, I shall be entitled to half-pay during subsidiary leave also, under the second sentence above referred to, and there would, therefore, be due to me a balance for the period (16th to 28th) of February passed on subsidiary leave, and I should be entitled to claim at the same rate during the rest of subsidiary leave.

7. A decision on this point also is requested.

Referred to the Examiner of Claims for early report.
