3. These plans have been approved by the Principal Inspector General, Indian Medical Department, and by the Sanitary Commissioner.

4. Two new buildings only were called for in paragraph 3 of the order, No. 100, of the 22nd January 1869, Public Department, viz., contagious ward and dead-house; but as the Sanitary Commissioner considered that the latrines and lavatories were indispensable as auxiliary buildings, an opinion in which Dr. Mackenzie concurred, I have had the necessary plans and estimates prepared and herewith submitted.

5. The original plans for the new buildings, as called for in this order, were prepared by Captain Goddard in March last, and they were sent to the Sanitary Commissioner, who recommended their revision and the preparation of the additional plans. They were then returned to the Executive Engineer, who revised them and re-submitted the whole set complete. These finally met the approval of the Principal Inspector General and Sanitary Commissioner, who returned them on the 14th May.

6. The estimates for the alterations to the hospital were prepared at the end of February; but the amounts entered for the different works were only approximate, as some of the alterations had to be planned in communication with Dr. Montgomery. Captain Goddard reports that he has since paid several visits to the hospital with the Secretary to the Sanitary Commissioner, and that the revised estimate now submitted provides for all the alterations and additions recommended by Dr. Mackenzie in his letter of the 5th January 1869, recorded at the head of the above order in the Judicial Department.

7. I was requested on the 9th of April last by the Principal Inspector General not to allow the alterations to the hospital to be carried out until the new buildings had been sanctioned by Government, as the medical officer in charge, Dr. Colvin Smith, could not provide accommodation for the patients elsewhere.

8. I request that funds may be provided for the works if they are to be proceeded with.

Referred to the Public Department, with reference to the order in that department, No. 100, of the 23rd January 1869.

2. Funds can only be made available by transfers from allotments to other works that may be considered of less urgency.
