Order - 31-1-89: no: 111.

The Deputy Conservator of the port should instruct Master of vessels reporting death on the high seas, that the registration of one at all should be done by them <sup>in</sup> person.

Registration under the Act being voluntary the Registrar need not take steps to register deaths reported him.

For orders

Clearly Sec 21 of the Act does not refer to Govt officials, but to private parties interested in the registration of the death.
Apparently the Master of the vessel should attend if deaths of Europeans etc should occur on the high seas, but as registration under the Act is voluntary nobody can be compelled to appear before the Registrar.
The D<sup>y</sup> Conservator of the Port could not be compelled to give notice of death on the high seas under sec 21. If the deceased has no relatives or friends on board the vessel or anyone of the vessel is the proper person to give notice in person sec 22 requires it to be before the Registrar.

The D<sup>y</sup> Com<sup>r</sup> should be told that Registrar of Births & Deaths should be made to appear before the Registrar.

Sir,

I am returning the three notices of death given by the Deputy Port Conservator, received with yours of the 15th inst.
I have the honor to acknowledge the following.

It is not clear how the Deputy Port Conservator is authorized to give notice of a death is, whether he comes under any of the clauses of section 21 of the Act. This should fully appear.

2 The description and residence of Mr H. B. Simpson should appear along with the name of the person the notice.

3 Under clause 3 of the Act the name of the person residing at the place of the death and longitude should appear against the letter (c) in the notice.

4. Notice No 2254 relates to the death of 5 persons. It would be better to send as many notices as there were deaths.

5. All the notices relate to the death of natives to whom the Act is not applicable. Vide section 11 (1). It applies only to East Indians, Jews, Annamites, Parsis, Europeans and Native Christians.

6. The description of the person whose death is notified to the Registrar should answer the requirements of columns 5, 6 and 7 of the Register of Deaths provided in Schedule D to the rules published under the Act.

Under section 22(1) the person giving the notice should sign the entry in the Register in the presence of the Registrar and under subsection the birth or death will not be deemed to be registered under the Act until the entry has been so signed.

I shall thank you to retransmit the above notices after causing the provisions printed out only supplied.
