28TH APRIL 1890, No. 296, REVENUE.

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

ORDER—dated 28th April 1890, No. 296, Revenue.

Census No. 8.

The Government of India having decided that a Census of the population of the Indian Empire shall be taken in February 1891, it is necessary that preliminary arrangements should be commenced at once. The first step is to divide the Presidency into blocks and circles and for this purpose information regarding the population and the number of houses in each village must be collected without delay. When the blocks are determined, detailed lists of houses and other buildings will be prepared and each building will receive a number. The next step will be the preliminary census which will probably be commenced in villages directly after the Christmas holidays and at a somewhat later date in towns. The preparation of this preliminary record will occupy about fifteen days and as it will form the basis of the final census, it is essential that this work should be very carefully performed and that it should be checked in the most complete and thorough manner possible. The last step is the final census, at which the entries of the preliminary record will be brought into agreement with the facts as they stand on the night preceding the enumeration. Detailed instructions for the preparation of these various returns will be issued by the Provincial Superintendent of Census Operations, whose circulars must receive prompt attention. This Officer will visit each district to confer with Collectors on the subject of the arrangements to be made, and to inspect, so far as is possible, the work done in connection with the census.

2. The arrangements for the census of each district will be under the control of the Collector and the bulk of the preliminary work will fall upon the ordinary revenue establishments. But the preparation and check of the preliminary records and the final enumeration will require the assistance of all officers of the Government, to whatever department they may belong, whose services can by any possibility be spared for this important duty. It is not, however, desirable that police officers should be employed in connection with the census, except perhaps to assist in enumerating the floating population. Orders will be issued in the Public Department directing all Heads of Departments to instruct their subordinates to the above effect, and His Excellency in Council trusts that the aid thus afforded will be rendered cheerfully and conscientiously, as otherwise an undertaking of this magnitude cannot be carried to a successful termination. A circular will also be addressed in the Public Department, to all Zemindars of position inviting their co-operation, as on the occasion of the last census.

3. A larger number of enumerators will be required than in 1881, but when it is found necessary to supplement the official staff endeavours must be made to obtain the services of persons who are willing to serve without payment. It is essential that the enumerators should be thoroughly instructed in their duties, and to ensure this the superior officers must themselves seize every opportunity to teach them by practical example how to fill up a schedule. The Supervisors, who should always be officials unless it is absolutely impossible to obtain enough men, must also be carefully taught their duties, and any failure on their part to adequately check the work of the enumerators must be promptly punished. The charge-superintendents will for the most part be Tahsildars and Deputy Tahsildars and Sub-Magistrates, but Sub-Registrars, Forest Rangers, Sub-Assistant Inspectors of Schools and others can also be employed on this duty. The charges must be smaller than in 1881 in order to secure adequate inspection of the work of the supervisors.

4. The Collectors of the marginally noted districts* will at once report what arrangements they propose for taking the census of the hill tracts or forest tribes within their jurisdictions. In the three northern districts, the enumeration of the hill population cannot be completed in a single day, but in the other special tracts the census could probably, without great difficulty, be carried out on the same day as in the rest of the Province.

5. As on the occasion of the census of 1881 each Municipality will form a separate charge and the arrangements for taking the census will be made by the Municipal Council under the general supervision of the Collector. The enumeration of the inhabitants of the City of Madras will in the same way be entrusted to the Municipal Commission, and the necessary orders will be issued in the Local and Municipal Department under Section 405 of the City of Madras Municipal Act, 1883.

6. The enumeration of the people living within the limits of navigable canals and persons afloat on them on the night preceding the day of the final census will be carried out by the officers of the Public Works Department. The census of the railway population, which includes all persons residing within railway limits, will be arranged for by the railway authorities. Special arrangements will be necessary for the census of contonments, jails and the sea-going population, but these will be under the general control of the Collector though the enumeration will be conducted by the Military, Jail, and Marine authorities respectively. The officers of these departments who are concerned in the census arrangements will receive the necessary instructions from the Superintendent of Census Operations.

SIR,

I have the honor to inform you that it is the intention of the Government to conduct a Census of the Madras Presidency in 1891, the preliminary operations of which will commence at once.

2. His Excellency the Governor in Council requests that you will render your Revenue Establishment available for the purpose of numbering the inhabitants of your estate, and for preparing certain returns relating to the acreage of, and assesment on, cultivated land. The performance of this duty will not, except for a few days, during which their time should be entirely devoted to prosecuting the Census, interfere with the discharge of their ordinary functions.

3. The Collector will advise you in detail as to the course which you should adopt.

4. His Excellency in Council is confident that you will lend every aid in your power to the successful accomplishment of the Census within your estate. He desires that you will make the inhabitants clearly understand that the Census is not designed as a means of increasing taxation, and that in instituting it the Government have only the welfare of the people in mind.
