 No. 8
 Order 18 June/90 No 660

From the schedules submitted, it is observed that reckless borrowing has been the cause of the insolvent's difficulties but in consideration of his long service, he may be restored without arrears of pay as recommended by the Commissary General.

 head of the office

In most cases the man never received from his creditors the full amount of the promissory notes he signed. eg. Creditors Nos 2, 4, 5, 8 & 13.

No explanation is afforded as to how the debt came to be incurred. The man was evidently in difficulties as far back as 1882 for in Sept of that year he filed a petition of insolvency which he withdrew in the succeeding month. He seems to have been plentifully paid by the Soudars.

He has served for a long period apparently satisfactorily. Should he in consideration of this and the recommendation of the C. G. be restored or should further help be called for. 12 June

I think that in consideration of his long service he may be restored without arrears of pay. Reckless borrowing appears to have been one of his difficulties. 11/6
