FOR ORDERS.

The general question as to the line which the Madras Government is to adopt in regard to the "conservation and maintenance of ancient monuments and buildings of historical or archaeological interest" (section 11 of Resolution in the Revenue and Agricultural Department under date 5th May 1890, No. 2-5-60, Arch., recorded in G.O., No. 395, dated 2nd June 1890) has to be answered.

2. The duty of preserving and repairing such buildings has been, and is to continue to be, imposed on the Public Works Department. In other respects, absolute discretion is given to the local Government in regard to this branch (for it may be considered as being such) of the Archaeological Department.

3. Until now, the decisions of Government have followed rulings and enunciations of general principles by the Government of India, couched in contradictory terms as one or the other of the two opposite schools was in the ascendant.

4. These schools may be distinguished in this note by the names of the "antiquaries" and the "restorers." Some antiquaries have been more or less restorers, and some restorers have been antiquaries; but, on the whole, the schools have been in marked antagonism. Honorable Members will, no doubt, have seen from time to time diatribes by the adherents of the two parties: one lately written to the "Overland Mail" will be found in the file.

5. Some years ago, the "restorers" had much influence at head-quarters, and obtained "representation" so to call it. A department was created, and Captain Cole was appointed Conservator for the whole of India. Dr. Burgess and he were bitter opponents, and the opinion held of the one by the other must be taken with large reservations; judging, however, from Captain Cole's reports, his tastes and talents were of an architectural, rather than an archaeological, order; he travelled over all provinces, and visited the chief buildings of interest; he prepared lists of them; he suggested means of preserving them, and, at times, of restoring them—his suggestions in the latter respect were too frequent. Dr. Burgess considered that Captain Cole encroached on the ground of

* of June 13/90

* Later on was "Major" Cole, & both readers are given in this note.

This note has been put in type at the C.I.'s desire, as it is unavoidably of some length.

Since it was drafted, a letter written by Dr. Burgess in 1886 (G.O. No. 533, March 12th, 1886) has been traced in which he practically conceded what has been urged in the note—§ 31 & elsewhere. In his later communication, printed in G.O. No. 529 W. Feb. 15th, 1888, he said nothing about the provisional character of the list (B) as the necessity for eliminating all but a limited number of items.
