Stating that, in future, the attainments of the newly arrived Junior Civilians in the vernaculars will be indicated by assigning marks for each of the heads of their examination, and suggesting that the examination might be altogether done away with.

Order. 11 March 91. 196.

The procedure proposed to be adopted by the President of the Board of Examiners in para 2 of his letter read above is approved.

2. In regard to the suggestion in para 3 the Govt. is of opinion that the examination of newly arrived Civilians in the vernaculars is useful in encouraging these officers to keep up their studies whilst in Madras. It further matters Govt. to the standard of instruction in England. The President's proposal cannot therefore be entertained.

For Orders with reference to para 3 of the President's letter.
Attention is directed to G.O. No.
128 of 18 December 1890 where the question of the abolition of this Examination was raised the Committee for the Examination of Associates. In that occasion Govt. declined to take any steps for dispensing with the examination.

I submit that this examination is perfectly useless & is a waste of the time of the examinees. The only thing that can be said for it is that it induces young gentlemen while in Madras to keep up what they have learned at home.
The examination course keeps them generally two months in Madras

I think the examination is not testing memory, and that it would be a mistake to give them the They at any rate encourage the people to get themselves & read a little in the vernacular which they otherwise would not do. They also suggest Govt. been whether the standard of instruction in England is being
