SUBJECT.

Re Cost for removing & bringing to the Museum certain slabs.

Bangalore,
18th May 1891.

No. 207.

From

A. REA, ESQUIRE, M.B.A.S.,

ARCHAEOLOGICAL SURVEYOR TO GOVT. OF MADRAS,

To

The Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras.

Adverting to Reference in the Public Department, No. 680 of 1890,
I have the honour to report as follows:

2:- The slabs could be removed by boat at a cost of Rs 16 to 20 per trip, according to the size of the vessel. Two boats, or two journeys of the one boat would probably be required. Thus the total cost of carriage would be about Rs 40.

3:- For coolies digging up some of the stones which still remain fixed in the ground, removing them from the slope at Amaravati to the boat, and from the

the cost would amount to about Rs 50.

4:- For such a short journey, no packing would be required, but straw should be laid between the stones in the boat to prevent their being fractured. Rs 5 would cover the cost of straw.

5:- Perhaps the Museum authorities might bear a portion of the outlay.

6:- Considering the importance of the site, I think it ought to be preserved. This could best be done by enclosing it with a fence or hedge, and instructing the village Munsiff to see that it is not broken down and the ground encroached on.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

Archaeological Surveyor, to the Govt. of Madras.

honour to state that the suggestion to remove the marbles still at Amaravati to the Bezawada Jubilee Museum, might be the best way of disposing of them.

2. The great majority of the marbles have been removed, and those remaining from the excavations of Dr. Burgess, as those lately excavated by myself arrived in the Madras Museum some months ago.
Dr. Thurston states that he will experience some difficulty in finding room even for them, so that if the others are moved it might be best to allow them to be sent to Bezawada.

Sir,
I have the honour to request that you will inform me whether it is intended to transfer to Madras the 396 marble slabs remaining at Amravati. If not I should be glad to know whether in your opinion they should not be transferred to the Jubilee Museum Compound at Hyderabad. If left unprotected as they are they will gradually be defaced & destroyed.
