Circular.

No. 2.

Foreign Office,

June 12, 1893.

Sir,

I am directed by the Earl of Rosebery to inform you that, in the opinion of Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, the Instructions contained in the Circular Despatch of the 17th July, 1888, regarding the relief by Her Majesty's Consular Officers of Distressed British Indians, have, in some instances, been misunderstood.

It is pointed out that these Instructions were not intended to authorize the repatriation of Indian subjects at the expense of Indian revenues, without previous reference to the India Office or to the Government of India. It is considered desirable to discourage the arrival in Europe of impecunious natives of India by preventing, except under special circumstances, their gratuitous repatriation.

I am to state that the Instructions must be understood as authorizing only such temporary relief, in the way of maintenance, as may appear to you, in the exercise of your discretion, to be absolutely necessary, and that before you incur any expense as regards the provision of a passage to India, you should, in all cases, refer either direct to the Government of India, or to the Secretary of State for India, through the Foreign Office. When the requisite authority has been granted, you should obtain an undertaking that the applicant will return at once to India. When this undertaking has been given, the applicant should be provided by you, if there should be direct communication by sea with India from any port in your district, with the cheapest direct passage. If there should be no direct communication from your district, the applicant should be forwarded to the nearest Consulate on the direct route to India, whence he should be dispatched with the least possible delay.

Reasonable expenditure incurred in either case will be defrayed out of the revenues of India.

The Indian Government will not undertake to defray expenditure incurred in assisting Indians to pass from one port to another, except under the conditions above stated.

I am,

Sir,

Your most obedient,

humble servant,

T. V. LISTER.
