September 1896.

Sir,

The attention of this Office has recently been called to the estate of Assistant Surgeon George Hyne who died at Tanjore on the 4th April 1826 and was buried there on the following day, according to a burial certificate duly forwarded to the East India House. In the year 1890 a volume of "Burial corrections", dated Madras 24th January 1890 and signed "F. Rowlandson" Registrar of the Diocese of Madras, was received. At page 131 of this volume there appear the following corrections in red ink.

Names—"William Haines"

in substitution for G. Hyne.

Quality &c.—"Surgeon in the Honourable Company's Medical Establishment" in substitution for Assistant Surgeon.

It is clear that the above corrections are erroneous. I have to request therefore that you will furnish me with an explanation on the subject.

Your obedient Servant,

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your "Emergency" paper the date of which is illegible, calling for an early report on the substitution of the name of "William Haines" for G.Hyne in the Burial corrections dated 24th January 1890.

2. The name G.Hyne was given in the return made to this office in (presumably) the year 1826. And the correction was made when the original Register Book was sent up here for examination in 1889.

3. I do not myself see that "it is clear that the above corrections are erroneous" as alleged in the letter signed Fredk. Trevor Director of Funds.

4. I have the honor to suggest, that some officer of Government, now at Tanjore be instructed to examine the original Register Book in the church there, and report what he finds. The correction is of so material a character for the name of the officiating Minister is also corrected, that I can hardly suppose it will not be borne out by a re-examination of the original entry.
