Note
Details as to the clothing supplied to the menials of the High Court already granted Liveries are shown at D

M. A. noted at E that persons who merely work in the office do not require uniform. It seems probable that these persons only do this work.

The sanction of Govt. is requested to the supply of clothing to the menials noted in the margin who are employed in the High Court at a total cost of Rs. 65. The cost it is stated can be met from the Budget allotment of Rs. 650 vide page 14 of G.O. 820 Financial, dated 27th November 1896 A

The sergeant is the overseer of the High Court Buildings and the gollahs and lascars do the duty of peons.

Attention is solicited to the notes at C in G.O. No. 602 Public, dated 18th August 1894 in which order Govt. declined to grant gollahs and lascars uniforms. These men ~~are~~ as stated above now ~~expected~~ to do the work of peons. If the expenditure is not sanctioned the grant of 650 should apparently be reduced.

Orders are solicited.

CW
31.3.97

It is submitted that

The Register has not shown any reason why Govt should go back on its order in G.O no 602 Public Order 18/8/94, as far as the Gollaks & Lascars are concerned. No reference has been made to this order.

The statement that the cost of the uniforms was asked for may be met from the budget estimate for the maintenance year does not apparently imply that the same estimate will suffice in future years. It is not stated how often the uniforms are to be renewed, but the charge will of course be a recurring one.

The uniform for the Sergeants might, it is submitted, be agreed to if the M.C. can find the money out of savings.

1/4/97.
3/4/97

 i.e. last official year.
The provision has now expired: nothing has been provided for uniforms in the Budget Estimate for 97-98. A

I don't see why - the man is well enough paid to provide himself with decent clothing.

Sanction must be refused while scheme on foot found
