In the reference to the line below this Govt will look rather foolish if the med. Officer in question do not get
med. certificate, but it is to be presumed that the S.S. thinks they will. Nk 8/7/57

As to this, the question was raised in a Committee before which came before yesterday (in the L or M Dept) I should think the precautions were talking could not be relaxed as yet.
I remember also seeing a paper which showed this was India's opinion also, and yesterday's paper showed that the same: Course thought to too. Would Mr. Forbes bring the question of relaxing precautions up about October. Very likely however we shall hear from him on the subject before then, but I don't feel in a hurry to make a move in so very risky a matter.

The S. G. is always springing something on Govt. and in this instance he does not say who the best Officers are, how many are applying before a test Board nor does he explain why he has not warned Govt. earlier.

The only best Officer going sick of whom I have heard anything is S. Dykstrick at Coimbatore. Perhaps the necessity for precautions against the plague has even increased as to allow of a reduction in the Officers employed for Railway inspection duty. If not application must apparently be made to India for help.
