India claims not only that repairs should be executed but that "such improvements are made as are necessary to fit it (the Medical Stores building) for the purpose for which it is required".

Is this too? To accept such a position? Necessary repairs are reasonable enough but improvements are quite another matter.

AS 31.1.98

The site now being provided for a great deal more than mere repairs - It contains improvements to a considerable extent. Let it be cut down to such repairs as we need to maintain the buildings in their former state. Then we can see whether it will be worth fighting. The position taken by India (Mil. Dept.) seems extraneous
