SIR,

Under Rule 10, II, (e) of the rules of the General Hospital Training School for nurses sanctioned in G.O.No. 191, Public, dated 26th February 1897 the fee to be paid by a special nurse probationer towards the expense of her board was fixed at Rs.50 per mensem. This figure was probably laid down at the time because it was thought that the board would cost about that amount, but experience now shows that Rs.20 is ample for the purpose. Recently the Senior Medical Officer received a cheque for Rs.50 from a special probationer out of which he has paid Rs.20 to the contractor for her diet and has now a balance of Rs.10 in his hands. The question now arises as to what is to be done with the unspent balance in this and similar cases in future. I do not think that it was the intention of Government to retain anything out of the special probationer's fees over and above the expense of their board, nor does such a course appear to me desirable. I am therefore of opinion that the special probationer should be charged the actual boarding expenses. To enable this to be done I have the honour to recommend that the rule in question may be amended as follows and the present marginal note omitted:-

For "Rs.50 per mensem", read "an amount not exceeding Rs.

Rs. 50 per month."
