To Local and Municipal Department (U.o) No.1766, dated 7th July 1899.

Hon'ble Member.

The paper should have been transferred to the Public Department. This Department, I understand, is in agreement with the Chief Secretary that the order was merely an obvious interpretation of Rule 51 .

Very well as the Chief
Secretary and Secretary
J. & M. think so.
A.T.Arundel,

The incorporation of the order in that Rule would seem to be unnecessary.

C. J. Weir,

The G.O., should certainly have been C.I.^d by Public and should I think have been issued by Public.

Judicial Department.

G.O.No.797 M, Local and Municipal, dated 6th June 1899.

It is submitted that the Local and Municipal Department may be asked why this order is communicated to Judicial. If it refers only to matters with which L and M is concerned its communication is unnecessary. If it amounts, as apparently it is intended to do, to an amendment of article 51 of the Rules regulating the personal conduct of Government servants, this order should have been sent to Public for counter-initials. If Public found it necessary to make an alteration in the book of rules it would have issued an order accordingly, which would have gone to all Departments. As matters stand an order has issued - apparently of general import - which does not correspond with the rules.

A. R. Knapp,

5 - 7 - 1899.

It seems to me that the question involved in the order in question was one of the construction of the Rules for the conduct of Government servants if there was any question in it at all. Further it related to the conduct of a Civilian which is a Public Subject. therefore I think ~~though~~ the papers might have been transferred to the Public. But the Local and Municipal Secretary seems to have regarded it only ~~as~~ a very small matter - not a general one as the order seems to have been passed by only one member. In this view, however, the order should not have been generally circulated. The order, however, lays down no new doctrine. It only declares the obvious meaning of Rule 51. I do not see that there is any alteration needed but it may be regarded as an addition that it is made plain that the resolution of a local body must not be passed till after an officer has left the District. Does L & M wish this interpretation to be incorporated in the Rules?
