Calcutta, the 12th February 1897.

Sir,

With reference to correspondence ending with your letter No.51 R.,dated 23rd January 1897 in regard to the infringement of standard dimensions that will be caused to the Madras railway lay-bye and adjoining line by the proposed extension of the goods transhipment platform at Guntakul junction station, I am directed to remark that the extension of the existing transhipment platform of its present width would not apparently involve the laying of new standard gauge or metre gauge sidings but only alterations of the cross over roads.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant.
