Sir,

I have the honour to inform you that it has been suggested by the Company's Traffic Manager that the name of Ulli station should be altered to Vallathoor. The suggestion has been made in consequence of a petition from the merchants of Vallathoor urging the proposed change. Ulli is only a small village about a quarter of a mile from the station while Vallathoor, which is three-quarters of a mile distant, is a much larger place with a considerable population. It is stated by the merchants in the petition above referred to that though Railway receipts for goods despatched to Ulli bear the name of that station, the covers enclosing them are despatched to Vallathoor and inconvenience is caused thereby. The present name of the station was no doubt given because of the close proximity of Ulli village to the site selected. If the change of name recommended by the Traffic Manager meets with your approval I shall be glad to know the correct spelling of the new name in English and the vernacular.
