NOTE FOR D.

This clerk in his letter to me applied for a month's Privilege leave but I asked him to produce a medical certificate which is now sent by Dr. Cook who recommends him for 3 months leave.

As we are very short handed & unable to carry out the necessary reforms in office, I propose that he be granted privilege leave for 3 months on substitute, i.e. he will be placed on half pay & a substitute can be employed on the other half of his salary.

Why cannot you appoint a temporary man?

It is very rough on a man, who has not been taking full advantage of leave earned. Am I right in assuming (1) that the man has full 3 months privilege leave due & that this leave has in consequence been lapsing for some time (2) that if he is granted 3 months leave on half pay now he will lose all privilege leave due to him on half pay & have to start earning this leave afresh after his return to duty

Dr. He has earned 3 months P.L. Being on the receipt of pay less than Rs 100 he cannot claim full pay during priv. leave if a substitute is necessary. He will be again entitled to P.L. at the end of 6 months from date of return to duty, but must as you say start earning this leave afresh.

Will there be any savings in our budget by paying for a temporary man?

P.T.O.

AR

If this is sanctioned by a P.O., the necessary provision will be made in the six months estimate. This is the usual procedure.

2. At present I cannot say definitely what savings there will be.

D. We can appoint a temporary man without reference to the clerk and sanction his appointment by R.O.
