2. Of these subjects the Government have now resolved to place the preparation of the Draft Revenue Acts in other hands, as Mr. Dale is too much occupied to find time for matters of such magnitude. They propose also to adopt a similar course with the Inám law, which is a part of the same general subject. Mr. Dale will therefore be requested to return to the Government office the documents specified in the margin, with their accompaniments.

3. Of the remaining three matters in the list, two relate to particular cases on which the Government Pleader's professional opinion is called for, and the third requests him to furnish a form for a legal document. Mr. Dale will observe that the earliest reference was made in February 1857, and the latest in June of the same year. He must be aware that such matters cannot be thus delayed without much inconvenience, and the Governor in Council hopes that he will now comply with those calls at an early date.
