The Collector thinks that Rama Naidu, the younger brother of the deceased, might represent the family, who all live together. The adoption, by deceased of Timma Naidu was not formal, not having been reported, and the Collector recommends the allowance to be continued in the name of Rama Naidu from 28th September 1860, together with arrears due to the deceased from 1st to 27th idem. The delay in reporting the case arose from the parties not presenting themselves before the Tahsíldár who held the original inquiry, and probably from some remissness in the late (now deceased) Tahsíldár.

The pension being an hereditary one, the Board under the authority vested in them by Government Order dated 27th August 1861, No. 1,719, sanction its continuance in the name of Rama Naidu, the brother of the deceased, these pensions descending to the lineal heirs of the original grantee. This order will take effect from the date of decease of the last incumbent, the arrears due to him will be paid to his successors.
