Proceedings of the Madras Government, Revenue Department, 20th June 1865.

Dated 20th June 1865, No. 1,373.

Nb. 417.

Read again Proceedings of Government, dated 4th February 1864, No. 215,
Revenue Department.

Miscellaneous.

Nellore, under Act XX. of 1863, should be appointed by election or nominated by the Collector, and its decision was deferred until the Rules for elections should be passed.

1. The question which was under the consideration of Government in the above Proceedings was whether the Temple Committees, to be formed in Nellore, under Act XX. of 1863, should be appointed by election or nominated by the Collector, and its decision was deferred until the Rules for elections should be passed.

2. These Rules having now been determined, the Government have reconsidered the question relating to Nellore, and have come to the conclusion that it is decidedly preferable to appoint the first Committees by nomination through their delegate to the Collector, and to defer the novel experiment of election until actual necessity for it may arise on the occasion of a vacancy in an existing Committee.

3. The Government do not see that it is necessary for the Collector to "rely chiefly" on the Tahsildars.

4. They give Mr. Dykes credit for more independence of such influence than he seems disposed to claim, and there is nothing whatever in the Act to prevent him from communicating, to the widest possible extent, with such respectable and influential Ryots, merchants, and other residents as he may deem it advisable to consult as to the material from which to form his Committees.

5. The Government, therefore, desire that Mr. Dykes will exercise his own discretion as to the men whom he may select and recommend for Committee men. He may consult whom he thinks proper before such exercise of his discretion, but he will with the least possible delay send up names for Committees, and thus enable the Government to give effect to the provisions of the Act.

6. The Collector will bear in mind that a minimum of three members is fixed for each Committee.
