Memorandum of the land which will probably be required for the supply and delivery channels from Cortilliar River to Madras, in connection with the Madras Water Works.

Commencing at Madras, the delivery channel passes in a westerly direction, through the Spur Tank to MacNicol's road, which it crosses at the culvert over the old supply channel from the Kuam.

Thence it follows the line of the old supply channel to the village of Aminjakarai, through which it passes to the Poonamallee road, near the small Pagoda in the same village.

From the Poonamallee road the line of channel runs in a north-west direction to the Red Hill Lake, through the following villages :—Aminjakarai, crossing the bed of the tank; Peria-gudall, Mullam, crossing the Wotairy nulla on the west of the old bund; Aiyena Verrum, crossing the Railway near the village of Kunnur; Kunnur and Surrupidu, crossing the Surrupidu tank, and thence to the Red Hill Lake.

The breadth of land required for this portion of the channel will vary from seventy to one hundred feet.

The line of the supply channel between the Red Hill Lake and Cholavaram Lake is as follows :—

It enters the Red Hill Lake at its north end, about two or three hundred yards to the west of the village of Narravarrakuppam; thence runs in a north-west direction through the lands of Narravarrakuppam, Attantangal, Vijeannallur, and Nallur, joining Cholavaram lake at the south end of the present bund.

The line of channel between Cholavaram Lake and the Cortilliar is as follows :—

It joins Cholavaram lake at its north end, and thence runs in a westerly direction through the villages of Alamady, following the line of the old supply channel, Yerumai Vittupalliam, Padu-kuppam, Alacharai, crossing the Tankal, Singlikuppam, crossing the Boosykal north of the village; Boosy Atipet passing north of the village; Kooduvully, Kalamy, Magaral, Tamarrapakkum, and thence through Averipakkam and Tamarrapakkum valley to the Cortilliar river.

The breadth of land required for the channel from the Cortilliar to the Red Hill Lake will vary from 120 feet to 200 feet.

There will also be required for the diversions of the Katankal and Boosykal drainage streams land in the following villages :—

For the Katankal diversion about 200 yards in length and about 100 feet in breadth in the village of Magaral.

For the diversion of the Boosykal about 900 yards in length and 100 feet in breadth in the village of Boosy Atipet.

The line of diversion runs on the west side of the chuttrum and village of Boosy Atipet.

For the site of the proposed dam across the Cortilliar a small quantity of land will be required in the village of Averipakkam on the south, and the village of Pinnapakkum on the north side of the river.

The site of the dam is about 800 yards to the west of Tamarrapakkum Covil.
