Madras

Sir,

In 1866 S/. Brocheron and Son as Vernacular Clerk in this Office successfully passed the General Test in the Vernacular Branch only, and was thereby according to the rules then in force entitled to admission to the special Test also.

2. In para 5 of the Uncovenanted Civil Service Examination Notice which appeared on page 844 of the Fort St. George Gazette for 1871 such persons are barred admission; it being a necessary qualification that they should have passed the General Test in English or the Anglo Vernacular Branch of the same.

D. Pending

3. Depending on the previous rules (Boocheram Chow did not qualify for the English or Anglo Vernacular Branch) and is consequently now barred admission.

4. It would be hard to conjecture further qualification as the heavy office duties became employé very little leisure, and as he has sufficient knowledge of English to express himself intelligibly I beg that his case may be submitted for the favorable consideration of Government, and that he may be allowed under the circumstances to go up for the special Test in English.

Bellary Collector's Office
12th August 1872

(Signed) J. H. Master
Acting Collector

The rules here alluded to were framed in order to prevent persons notoriously ignorant of English from wasting the time and labour of the Examiners by attempting the special test examination papers. The Collector will test the capacity of Boocheram Chow to write intelligible English and again address the Board.
