of a quarter part of the entire village of Melcuppam. He drew the said sum from the Treasury and divided it equally between himself and his six co-sharers. Of these six co-sharers for whom the deceased acted as agent, four individuals indicated as Nos. 6, 10, 15, 16, in the accompanying genealogical table died respectively about 8, 20, 30, six years ago, and the shares of those who died without issue were enjoyed by the surviving sharers equally. The other two sharers numbered 9 and 14 in the said genealogical table are now alive. No. 9 was the deceased, whose second son, the claimant, in No. 19. The family of the deceased, as detailed in Column 7 of the statement, is under the protection of his second son Mahomed Ecoof, No. 19, who, now, states that he is not aware of his father having divided the above allowance into seven equal shares, and claims the registry in his name of the entire amount of allowance enjoyed by his late father. Whether the deceased divided the allowance equally or not between himself and his co-sharers, it is difficult to determine now, but there is no doubt, however, that they were all supported out of the allowance.

8. The surviving three sharers Nos. 9, 14, and 26, sons of No. 15, who died twenty years ago, pray that one-fourth of the above allowance should be continued separately to each of them and by the second son of the deceased.

9. Although the allowance in question is not hereditary as shown above, yet, as the family of the deceased consisting of so many souls depend on it for their maintenance, the Collector recommends, for the favourable consideration of Government, that the indulgence shown to Mahomed Cossim in their order, dated 26th June 1867, No. 1,415, may be extended in the present case. The deceased was paid on the 5th October 1872 up to 30th September preceding, at Rupees 2-8 per annum, and the arrears due to him from 1st October to 4th December 1872, amounting to Rupees 41-8-7, may be paid to his second son.

Though it has been decided* that the grant is not hereditary, the Collector, in consideration of the large family left by the deceased and of their poor circumstances, recommends the continuance of the allowance.
