In their Proceedings of 15th January 1874, No. 60, the Board submitted to Government a proposal made by the Collector of Coimbatore to grant waste land free of assessment for two years when covered with prickly-pear, on condition that the prickly-pear should be cleared away within that time.

2. Government, in their Order of 29th January, approved of the scheme, and expressed their readiness to allow a longer period of free tenure if necessary. The Board referred the subject to all Collectors for report, remarking, at the same time, that a two-year cowle might not be a sufficient inducement to the ryots to clear away the plant in some districts. The foregoing replies to this reference are now submitted to Government for their orders on the subject.

3. Most of the Collectors propose a five-year cowle which should be, according to some, altogether free, while others would impose a progressive assessment.

4. The Collectors of Kurnool and South Arcot propose a five-year cowle, on condition that, if the land be not cleared within that period, the cowle shall lapse, and the holder be held liable for the ordinary assessment on the land.

5. The Board would recommend a modification of the above proposal, and would grant cowles varying in time from five to ten years, free of assessment, at the discretion of the Collector. The Board consider that some stipulation as to the extent of land to be cleared yearly should be entered in the cowle; thus, in a five-year cowle it should be made a condition that one-fifth of the land should be cleared yearly, the forfeiture of the cowle being the penalty of nonfulfilment of this condition.

6. The Collector of Nellore again states his opinion that an enactment is required to prevent the planting of prickly-pear; but Government have already* concurred with the Board in considering that legislation is not called for in the matter, and, at the same time, observed that individuals allowing the growth of prickly-pear on their land to become a nuisance are amenable to the law, as it stands.

* G. O., 15th July 1872, No. 1,064.

7. It is also by no means certain that prickly-pear can be regarded altog... as an unmitigated nuisance; for, apart from its use as fodder for cattle, it is undoub... a valuable agent in fixing the drift sands on the coast, and the Board believe that, when the time arrives for utilising these tracts, it will be found that the buried mass of Cactus has formed a soil more or less valuable.

8. The Collector of South Canara, who, in 1866, drew attention to the use of prickly-pear as food for cattle, again brings forward the subject; and laments the absence of the plant in his district.

9. The Board resolve to forward copies of the papers marginally noted (containing the correspondence which passed in 1866 regarding the use of Cactus as fodder) to the Superintendent, Government Farm, for consideration at his leisure.
