These reports show that the Land Improvement Act (XXVI. of 1871) has not been taken advantage of in a single case in this Presidency. The Act and Rules have been duly published in all the District Gazettes, except those of Chingleput and the Nilgiris (where the omission should be rectified at once); but this publication has been without results, as might have been expected considering the length and apparent complication of the Act and Rules, which are no doubt exaggerated in the translations.

2. The simple fact that land-owners wishing to improve their property, and having good security to offer, can get the necessary funds on moderate terms from Government, is evidently unknown to the people.

3. Before the Act was passed, opinions differed as to whether it should be passed or not; but now that it has been passed, and that money has become available for all parts of India, there can be no difference of opinion as to the expediency of appropriating part of that money for this Presidency. The Ryotwary system and the minute division of holdings will greatly limit the sphere in which the Act can operate, but there must still be numerous cases in which it can be made to confer great benefits.

4. If many loans are applied for and obtained, the work imposed on Collectors will be increased, but the Board are sure that there is not one of them but will willingly undertake extra work, contributing so directly as this must do to the development of their districts.

5. The reports now before the Board have been called for at this time by a mistake, and they will have to be [illegible] again at the end of the current year. In the meantime, the Board resolve to req[illegible] Collectors to break through the indifference with which the subject has been regarded, and to make a [illegible] earnest effort to work the hitherto dormant Act for the benefit of their districts.

6. The widest publicity should be given to the Act and Rules, and a proclamation stating the purport of them in clear and simple language should be promulgated in every village. The subject should be explained more fully to the chief ryots at the time of the Jummabundi. Collectors, Divisional Officers, Tahsildars and, indeed, all officials of the Revenue Department should seize every opportunity of discussing the subject with land-owners. Any disposition that may be shown by the people to make closer inquiries or to get advances should be encouraged promptly and efficiently.

7. If it is found that the interest required by the Act is too great or that any other provision of the law obstructs its working, this should be brought to notice in the reports which will have to be submitted in April 1875. Collectors should also report whether the ryots in their districts often borrow money from Soucars and spend it in improving their land, and what rate of interest is generally charged when money is lent on good security.

No. 62. ORDER THEREON, 9th November 1874, No. 1,413.

Miscellaneous.

THE Government approve the instructions issued by the Board in the foregoing Proceedings, and will await their further report on the subject, which should be submitted in time to admit of its reaching the Government of India by the 1st June 1875, as required in paragraph 1 of the letter from that Government, recorded in G. O., 23rd April 1874, No. 490.
