8. Grounds of Application in detail.—The portions of fields, Nos. 311 and 310, now applied for are not included in the extent set apart for the village-site, and are under the holdings of Inamdars and ryots who have given their consent to their being taken up for the extension of the existing site.

Though the unoccupied portion of the area of the present site is more than that now applied for, it is not suitable for the construction of houses. It is on the west and north of the fort of the village, and lies close to the foot of a hill where water is not procurable, and which is infested by cheetahs.

The extent now applied for lies quite close to the houses of the village, and suits all the requirements of the inhabitants who wish to construct houses. Water is procurable, and both the people and the cattle will be at a distance from the haunts of wild beasts.

The undersigned has personally inspected the place, and sees no objection to the application being granted.

Collector.
