As the brother of the deceased depends upon the allowance for the support of his family, the Acting Collector recommends that one-half of the allowance enjoyed by both may be continued in the name of Vencataramana Charry for his lifetime.

Proceedings of the Madras Government, Revenue Department, 16th May 1876.

SUBMITTED for the orders of Government.

2. A yeomiah of Rupees 77-6-9 per annum originally granted to one Narasinga Charry for offering up prayers for the State was continued to his son Narasima Charry. On the death of the latter a moiety of the grant was continued to his two sons in consideration of their being young orphans having no other means of subsistence (G.O., 19th September 1834). One of them, Munara Charry, has died, and the Collector recommends that half of the reduced allowance be continued for life to the survivor Vencataramana Charry.

3. Considering that the allowance is small, and that it was held jointly by the two brothers, the Board recommend that it be continued for life without further reduction to the survivor, Vencataramana Charry.

4. There appears to be no authority for the remark in the yeomiah list that the grant should lapse on the death of one of the incumbents.
